The USACM 26

Liquidating Trust (the "USACM Trust") hereby objects to Paczosa's claim. The basis for the claim is shown on the face of the proof of claim and in the attachment as an investment in USA Capital Diversified Trust Deed Fund, LLC ("DTDF"). Accordingly, it is a claim that was incorrectly filed in the USACM case. The USACM Trust respectfully requests that this claim be disallowed as a claim against USACM. Although DTDF has not yet filed a formal proof of claim against USACM, and there is no deadline for it to do so, DTDF has informally asserted a claim in excess of $100 million and the parties have participated in one unsuccessful mediation on this and other issues. Because DTDF does assert a significant claim against USACM, any claim held by Paczosa against USACM solely on account of the investment in DTDF is derivative of DTDF's claims against USACM, and Paczosa may not prosecute such claims on Paczosa's own behalf.

In In re Van Dresser Corp., plaintiff was a shareholder of Van Dresser, which owned two subsidiaries.¹ The president of Van Dresser looted the subsidiaries, ultimately forcing them and Van Dresser into bankruptcy. The plaintiff had guaranteed $1.125 million in loans to the debtor, and had to repay them when debtor defaulted. Plaintiff then sued the debtor's principal, and two other defendants (who he alleged aided and abetted the corporate looting) for various torts, including conversion, breach of fiduciary duty, and civil conspiracy.

The court stated that a debtor's trustee has the exclusive right to assert a debtor's claims, and that a claim belongs solely to the debtor's estate if the debtor could have raised the claim at the commencement of the bankruptcy case.² Additionally, if a judgment against a defendant by either the debtor or another party asserting the debtor's claim precludes the other from recovery, then the claims are not independent of each other and belong exclusively to the debtor.³

Thus, because both the plaintiff and the debtor corporation could state claims for damages against the defendants, but only one could recover on those claims, by default the claims were exclusively property of the Van Dresser trustees.⁴ In order for a plaintiff to bring a claim, either the trustee must have truly abandoned the claim, or the plaintiff must be able to allege a distinct and specific injury.⁵

Similarly, in In re Real Marketing, the debtor had attempted to enter into an asset purchase agreement that specifically included the assumption of debt owed to the debtor's managing member. The agreement fell through, and after the managing member filed an involuntary petition for relief against the debtor, the managing member asserted various causes of action against the purchasing company, including contract claims, debt assumption claims, misrepresentation claims, and interference claims.⁶ The court, however, found that all of the claims involved both the debtor's managing member and the debtor itself, and thus the right to pursue all of the causes of action resided with the trustee.⁷

DTDF further objects to any allowance of Paczosa's claim as a claim against the DTDF estate. DTDF has determined that Paczosa has an allowed proof of interest in the DTDF case in the amount of $72,070.98. This objection does not seek to prejudice the rights of Paczosa as a DTDF member to recover from the DTDF estate on a pro rata basis on account of Paczosa's membership interest in the amount of $72,070.98. Paczosa shall retain an interest in DTDF in the amount of $72,070.98, as reflected in the books and records of DTDF, and Paczosa is entitled to receive distributions on a pro rata basis with all other DTDF members.

Accordingly, the USACM Trust and DTDF seek entry of an order that will disallow the Paczosa's claim against USACM, disallow any proposed allowance of the Paczosa's claim in the DTDF case, and appropriately allow Paczosa to retain an equity interest in DTDF in the amount of $72,070.98 as reflected in the books and records of DTDF as of April 13, 2006.

This objection is made pursuant to Bankruptcy Code section 502, Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 3007, and Local Rule of Bankruptcy Practice 3007.
